

Thriller Author A.C. Frieden Visits Miami

MIAMI, Florida, USA (Nov. 22, 2012) – Chicago-based novelist A.C. Frieden arrived in Miami, Florida to research two locations for scenes in an upcoming thriller. Frieden, like many thriller authors, regularly travels to venues he intends to use as settings in his novels. He also visited bookstores in several in and around Miami to find suitable venues for future book signings and readings and related promotional activities.

"For this trip, there is a particular location in Miami's downtown business district that I found to be a perfect fit for a chase scene," said Frieden. "It's an area near the Miami Art Museum and the Miami-Dade Public Library, and I took detailed pictures and notes, all which will help make the scene both entertaining and authentic." This was his third trip to Miami in recent years.

In addition to visiting the Miami Art Museum and the main Miami-Dade Public Library, both of which are housed in a large complex in downtown Miami, Frieden looked for prospective novel scenes in various locations in Miami's South Beach, Key Biscayne and Coconut Grove. "Miami offers diverse settings for use in my books, and it is also a key link to Latin America, in terms of trade, organized crime, political tensions and more, much of which ties in well with my books," adds Frieden.
